Rural Health Clinics

Dr. Kasey Gregory Family Practice

As a child, Dr. Gregory dreamed of two things, becoming a doctor and moving to the Pacific Northwest. Originally from Los Angeles, she spent her summers on the Washington coast and quickly fell in love with the area’s beauty. After high school graduation, she moved to Salem, OR, to continue her studies at Willamette University. From there, she moved to Chicago to attend Chicago Medical School at Rosalind Franklin University. While getting her Medical degree, she also obtained two Master’s Degrees, one in Biomedical Sciences and one in Healthcare Administration. While in medical school, she fell in love with rural family medicine, as it incorporated her diverse interests and broad scope of care. She completed her medical training at Cascades East Family Medicine Residency Program, a rural residency training program through Oregon Health and Sciences University located in Klamath Falls, OR. While in residency, she met her husband and decided to stay in the local area after graduation to start her family. Every year she would vacation with her family to the Forks area to visit her husband’s extended family, and when the opportunity arose to move to the West End, she jumped at the chance. She is excited to offer her medical expertise to the Forks and Clallam Bay communities. As a Family Medicine doctor, she provides primary care to all ages, and her rural training has made her capable of caring for complex chronic conditions in resource-limited settings. Her special interests include women’s health, sleep medicine, wellness (including weight loss and preventative medicine), and improving healthcare policy/procedures. She believes in working together with each patient to develop their own personalized care plan in pursuit of better health. Dr. Gregory will be seeing patients in all three of our rural health clinics. She will be at Forks Family Medical Clinic three days each week, at Clallam Bay Medical Clinic one day each week, and at Bogachiel Medical Clinic one day each week beginning November 1, 2021. Call to schedule time with Dr. Gregory to establish care or make an appointment.
